One Way for a Woman to Earn a Living.

In the November Woman's Home Companion appears an account of a woman who, left in financial difficulties, made a good living by starting a shop in which she prepared daintily cooked foods so reasonable in price that families of two bought from her instead of cooking for themselves. She had a regular schedule of things for sale each day in the week and developed a good business. Following is an extract:

"She worked from seven to 11 o'clock each morning, then from two until five o'clock each afternoon. Each month she cut off every one of her items that was not popular, and substituted novelties. Her list of customers grew slowly but surely, and with many she had standing orders. The day she delivered orders the boy collected the dishes left the day before, and, as she made him responsible for them, he was careful.

"She asked her friends to save her all their empty one-half pound baking powder boxes, and in these she cooked her little suet puddings. She bought little paper ice cream shells and served sauces, etc., in them.

"There were only a few dishes to wash, she found, as everything came back clean, and she had only to scald them. If the dishes she made were more than enough to fill her orders, the surplus was put on sale in her front room. She also had an assortment of cakes and pies.

"As her fame spread, she often made salads, cakes, etc., for parties, and made a rate for larger quantities. She put up special luncheons for picnic parties, and at various times directed the supper given to a business men's club.

"She has today a steady paying business and a substantial bank account, and while many have suggested that she make up her dishes in larger quantities and move to a larger place, she prefers her safe though small business.

"So the little capital of one hundred dollars left her by her husband has become, in the hands of this resourceful woman with a good practical accomplishment, the basis of a self-respecting livelihood."

The Best Way? Go To Your Doctor

No sense in running from one doctor to another! Select the best one, then stand by him. No sense in trying this thing, that thing, for your cough. Carefully, deliberately select the best cough medicine, then take it. Stick to it. Ask your doctor about Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for throat and lung troubles.

RANDOLPH.

Mr. A. E. Bass accompanied Mrs. Bass to Boston, instead of Mrs. B. D. DuBois as before stated.

Mrs. V. A. Grant, who has been at Wellesley for a few days, where her daughter, Miss Lucile Grant, is now studying, also went to Boston to visit her son, Richard Grant, and on Wednesday returned home.

Mrs. S. N. Gould has vacated the Gould house, and after passing a few days with her niece, Mrs. Eugene Ellison, will go to Suncook, N. H., to pass the winter with her son, Almer Bagley.

Prof. Charles Stimets of Jersey City, visited his nephew, John J. Stimets, this week, and Charles Stimets of Barnard also came here to meet his uncle.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ripley and child of Montpelier are passing several days with J. N. Brown and family, while Mr. Ripley is recovering from an injury to his foot, caused by stepping upon a nail.

Mrs. C. D. Sanborn, who has been in Worcester, Mass., to visit her mother, returned home on Monday.

Heber T. Holman had 42 head of cattle tested by Dr. E. H. Stearns, and seven of the number were condemned. George Mudgett had 18 tested, but none of them was found diseased.

The committee appointed to purchase an athletic field for the R. H. S. alumni for the use of the school here has decided upon a plot of land between the Stewart property on School street and the property of Mrs. George F. Jones. This piece of land will cost $1,400, and $875 of this is now in the hands of the committee.

An appeal is made to the alumni of the school for the balance of this and enough more to prepare the field for use.

Ample Testimony of Relief

from Rheumatism, Sciatica and Neuritis

Testimonials are usually discounted, but your druggist will show you proof backed by affidavit that Nuro is promptly relieving these diseases in all sections of the country.

Nuro is a specialty prescription, entirely free from opiates and narcotics—simply an effective antidote for the uric acid poison which causes all rheumatic diseases.

Dear Sir:

"During the past two years," writes one correspondent, "I have been treated by several doctors and have taken baths at Marlborough, Minn. and Hot Springs, Ark., but derived very little benefit."

"My wife happened to see an ad. about Nuro in the Boston Post. She sent $1 for a box for me to try. I had lost all faith in any kind of medicine. The first box you sent was lost in transit, but I received another box on Wednesday last. I took one powder after dinner and one after supper. The results were marvellous. My wife, children and neighbors were surprised to see the change. I feel much relieved—an able to walk better than I have for two years. Enclosed please find $2 for which please send me a $2 box by return mail. I wish to get it as quickly as possible."

Magister Chemical Co., Flatiron Bldg., N. Y. Trade your miserable aches and pains to us for $1 a box and add your praise to the rest. Red Cross Pharmacy, E. A. Brown, and all leading druggists.

FRAIL, SICKLY CHILD

Restored to Health by Vinol—A Letter to Mothers.

Anxious mothers often wonder why their children are so pale, thin and nervous and have so little appetite. For the benefit of such mothers in this vicinity, we publish the following letter:

J. Edmund Miller, New Haven, Conn., says: "My little daughter ever since her birth had been frail and sickly, and was a constant source of worry. Several months ago we commenced to give her Vinol. I immediately noted an improvement in her health and appearance, and from the good it has done her I can truly say it will do all you claim."

This child's recovery was due to the combined action of the medicinal elements extracted from cods' livers—combined with the blood-making and strength-giving properties of tonic iron, which are contained in Vinol.

Vinol will build up and strengthen delicate children, old people, and the weak, run-down and debilitated. We return the money in every case where it fails. Red Cross Pharmacy, Burt H. Wells, Prop., Barre, Vt.

P. S.—Eczema sufferers! We guarantee our new skin remedy, Saxo.—Adv.

MONTPELIER.

Council Authorized to Borrow Funds from Water Fund.

At the special city meeting held last evening to see whether the city would appropriate something over $7,000, the estimated amount needed to tide the city over until next March, it was voted to allow the city council to borrow not over $9,000 from the water fund, to be repaid on or before July 1, 1913. Mayor Estee spoke at length and gave the voters the opportunity to do one of three things—to borrow money from the water fund, the sinking fund or to appropriate the amount outright. When it came to a vote, there were only two no votes from the 150 present. Tonight, there is to be a second special meeting to act on the request of the school commissioners for an additional appropriation of $12,000 to enable it to complete the new school building as originally proposed.

Miss Eleanor Black has resigned as district nurse in Montpelier, having decided to accept one of several attractive offers which she has received from other places.

MODERNIZING JERUSALEM.

Bids Fair to Become Again the Chief City of the Hebrews.

The latest indication of the progress going on in Jerusalem was the arrival a short time ago of a massive American motor road roller, and the decision to equip the city with an efficient tramway system. The walls inclose 200 acres, of which 35 acres are occupied by the temple enclosure. But owing to the impossibility of housing the thousands of Jewish immigrants who still continue to arrive, building has been proceeding outside the walls to a very considerable extent.

The consequence of the presence of this extramural population is that one and then another of the gates was left open by night, until to-day they are all perpetually open. Indeed, two of the gateways have no gates at all. Meanwhile the Mohammedan population is not by any means keeping pace with the Jewish and the holy city seems in a fair way to become once more in fact as well as in name the capital city of the Hebrew race.

Jerusalem is soon to have its own tramway service, as a concession for the purpose has already been granted to a French company, which will start laying the tram lines in the course of the summer. An English company has applied for a concession to illuminate the city with water by the construction of large reservoirs near wells situated at a distance of about 16 miles from Jerusalem. The municipality is also considering proposals for paving the streets and constructing sewage works. A modern fire extinguishing apparatus and a telephone installation are also to be provided. The project of constructing a harbor in Jaffa, which has been discussed for the last 30 years, is likely to be realized at last. A French-Belgian company, with the co-operation of the Jaffa-Jerusalem Railway company, is said to have applied for a concession to carry out the project, for which it has raised a capital of nearly one million pounds sterling. The government is reported to have come to an agreement with the company about the conditions of the concession, and only the consent of Parliament is now necessary.—From the American Hebrew.

Sharp Criticism of Army Life.

A writer in the November American Magazine sharply criticizes army life. Taking up the case of the private who enlists for three years at $15 a month, the author says in part:

"What has he to show for those three years that will help him to be successful as a carpenter, a mechanic or a merchant or anything else that is useful? For three years his mind has been turned away from all those things whereby he might make a living. He has acquired a habit of idleness and a distaste for civil life. Much of the training and knowledge which he previously had have lapsed from disuse. In their place he has acquired the vices of the camp, but he cannot live on them. If a man were receiving fifteen dollars a month and at the same time a training that would fit him for something useful, well and good; but at what price can a man agree to throw away his future?"

"A chance to see the world." No man sees less of the world that is worth seeing than the private soldier. He sees the inside of forts and barracks. He is not stationed where there is much to see, and what travel he gets does not educate him.

"A short time ago I met a United States marine from the New York, in Houston, Texas. He said he was bringing back a deserter from Shanghai, China, to penal servitude in the Brooklyn navy yard. The ordinary language of this corporal, the unnecessary and meaningless obscenity that was dragged into every sentence, was simply appalling. The topic seemed to make no difference; every sentence required an obscene expression to give it emphasis and color. I thought the deserter did well to choose penal servitude instead of the conditions reflected by such conversation."

"I wish the Peace Foundation people would set aside an appropriation to follow up the lives of a thousand men who have been discharged after a three or five-year enlistment. I am confident they would find an appalling record of evil influences spreading from these men to the community; a record of idleness, dissipation, viciousness and general evil example."

WHAT A CRACK DID

By SADIE OLCOTT

Bernard Ellsworth, the only son of wealthy parents, and Susie Pixley were playmates. When they grew up Bernard went to another field for awhile and during his absence corresponded with Susie. Whether or no it was absence, he discovered that he wanted her. Her parents were in rather straitened circumstances at the time, and this caused the young man to think that the question between him and Susie was, should he, who would inherit wealth, marry a girl who had not even prospects? He wanted her badly enough to make the pecuniary sacrifice, but considered that Susie, under the circumstances, should feel highly flattered.

Before his return he wrote her a long letter which he considered contained a lot of good sense, ending with a proposition of marriage. When the letter was delivered Susie was out. The postman handed it to a maid, who left it on a mantel with a crack in it, and—perhaps it was the modesty natural to a love letter—it slipped down into the crack out of sight. When Susie came in the maid told her that a letter had come for her, and she was going to get it when she stepped in to play one of those tricks so common in the affairs of man and woman kind. There came a ring at the telephone, followed by a summons for Susie. The summons kept her away all night, and the next day her little brother was taken very ill, so that the matter slipped her mind.

When Bernard returned he did not go to see her, and when she learned that he had been at home a week without calling she was surprised. It did not seem that there was anything to do in the matter. She was unconscious of having done anything to offend him and, being sensitive, fancied that he might have met his fate while away and thought it best to break off all intimacies with other girls. Perhaps she would meet him and the matter would be explained.

But that fate which had started the misunderstanding kept it up. A number of times Bernard and Susie were within a hundred feet of each other without coming in contact. Once she saw him crossing a street, but since he was not facing her he did not see her or, if he did, pretended he didn't. They were under the same roof at social gatherings twice, but the little lump that fate set to keeping them apart contrived that they should not be in the same room at the same moment.

Then one morning Susie took up a newspaper to see under large headlines a notice of the failure of the Ellsworth company, incorporated, of which Bernard's father was president and owner of the majority of the stock.

The day after this announcement Bernard, who was sunk in despondency consequent upon the family misfortune, received a letter from his old friend Susie offering him her sympathy. One would suppose such a letter coming at such a time would be received in the spirit with which it was sent. But Bernard considered himself to have been badly treated—snubbed, in fact—at receiving no reply to his letter of offering himself, and the epistle he now received seemed to be adding insult to injury. He tossed it in a wastebasket without reply.

Then fate, still bent on playing its little game, brought about another element to complicate matters. Susie and her father, who had long been keeping his family in straitened circumstances by trying to market inventions, succeeded in getting capital for the production of an electrical machine which made every one even remotely connected with it rich. Mr. Pixley had secured a nice block of the stock in payment for organizing the company, and it became a fortune.

But one thing prevented Susie from being happy in her family's altered fortune. She would have liked to make her old friend Bernard happy in some pecuniary way that was rather vague in her inexperienced mind.

Then fate, having got the matter into as bad a snarl as possible and having turned things completely upside down, instructed its imp to undo everything that had been done. The house the Pixleys lived in was very much run down and it was decided to make the necessary repairs and improvements. One morning when mechanics were tearing everything to pieces a workman who had just pulled down a mantel handed Susie a letter. She recognized Bernard Ellsworth's handwriting and at once opened it. Since it was a long epistle she took it to a portion of the house that had not yet been disturbed and read
